

Code of Conduct & Photo Release

The purpose of this policy is to provide a code of conduct for any and all Stupid Cancer community members who choose to attend CancerCon Live. It applies to all individuals present at all times when attending CancerCon Live on premises at the Hyatt Regency Austin and any CancerCon affiliated offsite activities.

I agree that I will:

- Treat everyone in the AYA cancer community with dignity, respect, and worth.
 - I make a commitment to be non-judgmental about the cultural differences, living conditions, beliefs, and/or lifestyles of other Stupid Cancer community members.
 - I will refrain from making insensitive or offensive comments about politics, religion, race, gender identity, sexual orientation, or other potentially sensitive topics.
- Report any emergencies to the appropriate staff or onsite authorities immediately to ensure the health and safety of attendees and all members of the community.
- Keep conversations confidential so that breakout sessions and social activities are a safe space for all.
- Be cautious when requesting or sharing personal details, including medical and contact information (email, phone number, social media). Maintain appropriate boundaries both within and outside of Stupid Cancer mediated environments, and respect that other community members may prefer not to socialize outside of a Stupid Cancer setting.
- The Hyatt Regency Austin is a smoke-free hotel. I agree to abstain from the use of all tobacco products, recreational drugs, and excessive alcohol consumption on site.
- The Hyatt Regency Austin permits dogs under 100 pounds with advance notice, but only licensed service animals will be permitted in CancerCon sessions, activities, and Exhibit Hall. I agree I will not bring my pet to any CancerCon activities if it is not a certified service animal with proper documentation.

Accountability

Stupid Cancer reserves the right to remove any community member from a program for not adhering to this Code of Conduct or behaving in an abusive or inappropriate manner.

Photography and Recording Release

Acknowledgement and Consent

I consent to the video or audio recording and/or photography, by Stupid Cancer, its representatives or licensees or any other party authorized by Stupid Cancer, of my name, likeness or other personal characteristics (e.g., voice, biographical information, or other identifiable information), and/or my property, including any exhibit or presentation materials, in connection with my attendance at CancerCon. I also consent to the reproduction, publication, distribution, exhibition, display or use of any such images or recordings, with or without my name, company name, or with a fictitious name, by Stupid Cancer or its successors, assigns or licensees, in connection with its operations, products and services, or any other legally-permissible uses chosen by Stupid Cancer such as public relations, commercial uses, advertising, and publishing (including in electronic form on the Internet), in all manners, in any current or future medium or format, throughout the world.

I acknowledge that Stupid Cancer is not obligated to use or exercise any of these rights. I further acknowledge that I have the authority to grant this nonexclusive license and that doing so will not violate the rights of anyone else.

I recognize that Stupid Cancer, as the program producer, will be the copyright owner of all photographs, video/audio recordings and all media, products or content subsequently generated from those materials, and I waive any right to royalties or other compensation arising from or related to their creation or use. I understand that images and recordings may be edited, copied, exhibited, published, or distributed and waive the right to inspect or approve the finished product wherein my likeness or personal information appears.

I further agree not to record or broadcast any portion of the conference without the prior written consent of Stupid Cancer, unless I have validly registered for CancerCon as a member of press and received press credentials, in which case I agree to abide by the terms of the CancerCon Media Policy. Still photography is permitted for non-commercial purposes with the permission of those being prominently photographed.

I understand that noncompliance with this policy is grounds for exclusion from this and future events. I also confirm that, if I am registering as an exhibitor and to the extent any presentation or exhibit materials I utilize will include third-party material, I have obtained permission for its use consistent with the scope of this license.
